"Art Is Long"

BECAUSE it is real and true. The trivial, superficial and cheap must inevitably disappoint in photography as in everything.

LOOK at some of your old photographs. Rare indeed is the home that has not some terrible examples of inartistic posing which are charitably put among the things to laugh at. They never were good art, so never can be right. Sane, true, normal art never pales. Sensible posing is half of the secret of Purdy photographs and their popularity.

Hub (arriving home)—Well, did you go to the dentist's and have that bridge work done?

Wife—No, dear. Mrs. Swift called and we spent the afternoon in bridge play.

Editor—I wished you'd asked the distinguished visitor how our street-car manners impressed him.

Reporter—I did, sir, and he replied that he hadn't seen any manners on our street cars.

The Mistress (interviewing servant in search of work—perhaps)—And have you had any experience in taking care of children?

Spendthrift Son—Dad, I've ordered an aeroplane and I expect to fly many times next summer.

Father—Then you'll pay for the thing yourself; there'll be no flies on me.

Her—No, Tom. My ideal man must be brave and intellectual.

Him—Well, didn't I rescue you from those tramps, that were attacking you?

Her — That was brave, but not especially intellectual.

Him—Wasn't it? I hired those tramps to attack you.

One of the admirers of Senator Cummins said at a banquet to Des Moines:

"I'll never forget the sparkle of Cummins' repartee all through his first campaign for the governorship. One evening, I remember, he was interrupted in the midst of a strong peroration by a yell:

"Hey, does your mother know you're out?"

Cummins smiled and nodded at the heckler.

"Yes, and as soon as the returns are counted," he said, "she'll know I'm in."

"THE WOMAN"

Perhaps the most important dramatic event of the season is the presentation at this theatre of David Belasco's famous play "The Woman." This drama, from the pen, of that brilliant young American author, Wm. C. deMille has created a real sensation wherever it has been seen and no play of modern times has received more favorable comment from both theatregoers and critics. One company remained for nine months last season at the Republic Theatre in New York, while another played for five months at the Olympic Theatre in Chicago, both record runs for the season.

In "The Woman" Mr. deMille has developed a theme that is entirely novel in conception and treatment and has written a play of gripping interest that has already taken its place among the greatest works of the greatest American dramatists. To this has been added the genius of David Belasco, the great master of stage technique, and the result is a performance that cannot fail to hold and interest the most jaded theatregoer.

With a background of political intrigue at the National Capital "The Woman" has for its principal theme the loyalty of one woman to another and her refusal of bribes, her indifference to threats, in her battle to preserve the other woman's good name. The story is romantic; and although "The Woman" is classed as a serious play, the lines are bright and sparkling and the comedy element is prominent throughout.

Mr. Belasco has given the play one of those splendid productions for which he is noted in which the perfection of detail makes a perfect whole. The scenic settings are of an elaborateness seldom seen on the stage.

The company that will be seen here in "The Woman" is, without a change, the same that played during the long run in New York last season. It includes such well known players as Mary Nash, Jane Peyton, John W. Cope, Harold Vosburg, Edwin Holt, Cuyler Hastings, Carleton Macy, Stephen Fitzpatrick, William Holden, Langdon West, James Gerson and Jose Rossi.

The politest intimation ever addressed was probably that of the governor of the Bombay jail to the man about to be hanged. The execution was fixed for 1 p. m., and the governor was to sail for England on leave two hours later. But the time for the boat's sailing was changed from 3 p. m. to midday. The governor was equal to the occasion. He addressed an official communication to the convict as follows: "The governor presents his compliments to Mr. X and desires to know whether it would suit his convenience equally well to be hanged at 10 a. m. instead of 1 p. m."

The play producer, limping slightly on his rheumatic leg, told a dramatic critic stories as he strolled in the bright, cold weather down Broadway. "There was one chap," the producer said, "I couldn't get rid of. Dear me, he was persistent. I refused his farce seven times, and he still kept turning up with it, rewritten here and there. The eighth time he came I told him firmly it was no use. 'But, Mr Producer,' he said, 'is there no possible way you could put my farce on the stage?' 'Well,' said I 'there's one way, but I don't know if you'd submit 'Oh, I'd submit!' he cried. 'I'd submit to anything!' 'Then,' said I, 'we'll grind it up and use it as a snowstorm.'"

Gratitude, although it may exist in a very earnest form, is by no means the strongest and most consuming of the human emotions, as this story from the Rock Island Union bears witness, says the Youth's Companion. When Lawrence Barrett's daughter was married Stuart Robson sent a check for $5,000 to the bridegroom. The comedian's daughter, Felicia Robson, who attended the wedding, conveyed the gift.

"Felicia," said her father upon her return, "did you give him the check?"

"Yes, father," answered the daughter.

"What did he say?" asked Robson.

"He didn't say anything," replied Miss Felicia, "but he shed tears."

"How long did he cry?"

"Why, father, I didn't time him, I should say, however, that he wept fully a minute."

"Fully a minute," mused Robson.

"Why, daughter, I cried an hour after I signed it."

"Have you a fireless cooker?"

"Yes; we're afraid to discharge her."

"I had a strange experience with an intoxicated man in a telegraph office down State the other day," says a traveling man. "Was in a hurry to send a message myself, but this fellow was leaning against the receiver's window as if he was camped there for the night. He muttered a lot of fool stuff to the man behind the screen, but I couldn't hear what it was. Finally I got impatient and shoved my message over his shoulder. At the same time I saw the scrawl this souse was endeavoring to get on the wire. It was addressed to somebody in New Orleans.

"He fished in his pocket, produced 62 cents in small change and started away. 'Hold on,' the clerk said, 'this isn't enough. It will cost you $1.40 to send this to New Orleans.'

" 'A' right, ol' man,' waved the inebriate, angrily, 'that's all I got with me right now. Just send it as far as you can for th' money!'"

"Pa, what is a 'bald statement'?"

"Your mother's that I am losing my hair."

Mr. McTavish attended a christening where the hospitality of the host knew no bounds except the several capacities of the guests. In the midst of the celebration Mr. McTavish rose up and made the rounds of the company, bidding each a profound farewell.

"But, Sandy, mon," objected the host, "ye're not goin' yet with the evenin' just started?"

"Nay," said the prudent McTavish. "I'm no' goin' yet. But I'm tellin' ye good night while I know ye."

"I'm afraid we might run into an iceberg."

"The danger is very slight, auntie."

"Well, give the captain a dollar anyhow, and then he'll be extra careful."

Mrs. Struckit Rich—Our waiter is a student. He is working his way through college.

Mr. Struckit Rich—You don't tell me! Well, if the colleges would only turn out a few more good waiters I'd have more respect for them seats of learning.

The fiancee of a Louisville girl had been spending the winter in Florida in connection with his father's interests in that quarter.

"Marie," said the girl to a friend the other day. "Walter has just sent me the dearest little alligator from Florida!"

"Dear me!" rejoined Marie, with affected enthusiasm. "And how shall you keep him?"

"I'm not quite certain," was the reply, "but I've put him Florida water till I can hear further from Walter."

He was a stalwart young German, and as he walked into the barn he saluted the owner with:

"Hey, mister, will you jop me?"

"Will I what?" returned the farmer.

"Will you jop me? Make me work yet?"

"Oh, I see, you want a job?" said the hearer. "Well, how much do you want a month?"

"I tell you. If you eat me on der farm I come for $5, but for twenty-five I eat myself by Schmidt's."

ELECTRIC BATHS

In our already complete establishment for Turkish and Russian Baths, we have recently installed Electric Baths. Having our own electric plant, we are in a position to give these baths at a reduced rate, the charge being $1.50, or 50c in addition to our regular baths.

Our baths are in a specially constructed building and combine two distinctly and separate establishments for men and women. We call your attention to our conveniencies for remaining all night.

"Eureka!" exclaimed Hiram Hoskins, who, with a lighted candle in his hand, was hunting for a leak in the gas pipe.

A moment later Mrs. Hoskins sadly said: "That's just our luck. Now we'll have to pay out more money to get the roof fixed."

"You have tried to fashion a government on the lines of the American Republic?"

"Yes," replied the Chinese philosopher, "but up to the present time we haven't been able to get much beyond the Fourth of July accidents."

"Why was it you never married again, Aunt Sallie?" inquired Mrs. McClane of an old colored woman in West Virginia.

"'Deed, Miss Ellie," replied the old woman earnestly, "dat daid nigger's wuth moah to me dan a live one. I gits a pension."

"How fat and well your little boy looks."

"Ah, you should never judge from appearances. He's got a gum-boil on one side of his face and he has been stung by a wasp on the other."

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased from 1.1 billion to 1.5 billion, and the number of people aged 65 and over has increased from 0.2 billion to 0.5 billion (United Nations, 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of the young and the old. The United Nations has set out a series of goals for the 21st century, including the goal of 'improving the lives of the world's youth' (United Nations, 1999). The World Bank has also set out a series of goals for the 21st century, including the goal of 'improving the lives of the world's elderly' (World Bank, 1999).

The need to address the needs of the young and the old is a global issue. It is a challenge that we must all face. We must find ways to improve the lives of the world's youth and the world's elderly. We must find ways to ensure that everyone has the opportunity to live a good life.
